

BELVOIR CASTLE

ACCOMMODATION AT CROXTON LODGE

Croxton Lodge is part of the Belvoir Castle Estate which has been the ancestral home of the Manners family for 500 years and is currently the family home of the 11th Duke and Duchess of Rutland.

The Lodge is situated within some of England's most historically significant country side. Reminiscent of the Yorkshire dales, this land provides a wonderful contrast to the woodland and arable surroundings. It is the final resting place of the heart of King John of England, buried in Croxton Abbey in 1216.

Croxton Lodge has recently been renovated and boasts 2 luxury self-contained residences, both comfortably accommodating 8 people. Fully equipped to the very highest of standards it offers a communal lodge dining room and bar housing unique sporting memorabilia and games room. Croxton Lodge provides a homely and private environment to relax after a busy days sport on the Belvoir Estate.
