SANTA FE - MIXED BIRD SHOOTING

Santa Fe Province

Located in the heart of Argentina's legendary Paraná River wetlands, Estancia San Javier offers some of the finest duck shooting in South America. The vast network of marshes, lagoons, rivers, and islands in Santa Fe Province creates an ideal habitat for millions of ducks and a remarkable variety of waterfowl species. This unique ecosystem has earned the region a reputation as one of the world's premier destinations for duck hunters.

In addition to exceptional duck shooting, nearby dove roosts and natural grasslands provide excellent opportunities for high-volume dove shooting and traditional perdiz hunting, making San Javier an outstanding mixed-bag destination. The hunting grounds are spread across a spectacular wetland landscape, with many areas accessed by boat, adding an authentic and adventurous element to each day in the field.

The lodge is located approximately 90 minutes from Santa Fe Airport and accommodates up to 12 guests in eight comfortable en-suite bedrooms. Combining warm Argentine hospitality, excellent cuisine, experienced guides, and world-class shooting, Estancia San Javier provides the perfect setting for an unforgettable wingshooting adventure in Argentina.

BUENOS AIRES - PURE DUCK HUNTING

Buenos Aires Province

Located in the heart of Buenos Aires Province, Las Rosas Lodge offers an exceptional duck hunting experience in one of Argentina's most productive waterfowl regions. Vast flatlands dotted with countless lagoons, ponds, marshes, and small rivers create the perfect habitat for an abundance of ducks and make this area a true paradise for waterfowl enthusiasts.

The hunting program begins before sunrise, with hunters heading to the shooting grounds by boat or vehicle after breakfast. The numerous lagoons surrounding the lodge provide a variety of traditional decoying opportunities. The area is home to more than a dozen duck species like common fulvous tree duck, black bellied tree ducks, white faced tree ducks, southern widgeon, brown or Chilean pintail, white-cheeked pintail, speckled teal, cinnamon teal, Argentina red shoveler, silver teal, rosy billed pochard, black headed duck, and the lake duck offering remarkable diversity and exciting shooting throughout the season.

After the morning hunt, guests return to the lodge for lunch and a relaxing siesta before heading back into the field for the evening flight.

Situated approximately two hours from Buenos Aires International Airport, the family-owned lodge accommodates up to 12 guests in six spacious en-suite bedrooms. Excellent hospitality, outstanding cuisine, and a warm, relaxed atmosphere make Las Rosas Lodge one of Argentina's premier duck hunting destinations.
