The Shoot

El Molino Blanco has belonged to the Fernández de Córdova family since the XIV century. It was the Duke of Arion, who, together with King Alfonso XIII, started arranging the very first driven partridge shoots in the lands of Valdepusa.

With more than 15 different drives covering over 1,100 hectares of stunning landscapes, all our shoots are 100% bespoke. The setting of the Estate is incomparable for partridge shooting and the changing terrain is able to offer a great variety of drives, allowing teams to choose between high English style or traditional Spanish drives. Either way, El Molino Blanco is able to display a fantastic quality of birds.

Generally, the shoot is arranged for teams of 4-8 guns and typically, a day consists of 4 different drives. During the shoot, each participant will be assisted by a loader and a "secretario" looking after your every need.

After the second drive there is a short break for the "taco", that usually takes place in a privileged spot with magnificent views of the Estate. Once the last drive is over, the team is taken to the main lodge where lunch will be served. Finally, after resuming the different drives of the day, the team will be off to get ready for drinks and a formal dinner.

The Lodge

Nestled on the banks of the Pusa River our Lodge is the perfect place to relax and unwind during the stay with us. Decorated with maximum detail, the recent improvement performed by the family, brings together a combination of tradition and modernity, making a unique and charming atmosphere. The house has two spacious living rooms, both of which include a beautiful fireplace.

It also offers 10 double and 2 individual fully equipped rooms, tastefully furnished where guests will find the warmth of the past but with all the amenities of today. Not to forget about the outstanding gastronomic culture so typical from the region. Guests will be able to choose from a wide variety of Spanish traditional dishes and wines, always served by accommodating house staff who are on hand to look after your every need.
